

Verse, Chorus, Inferno Info Text

Hey there, Verse, Chorus, Inferno here. We're a punk rock band from Como, Italy, and our story is pretty funny.

We started the band back in 2007 as an "all star band" (with members from Staly Fish, Pankina and INhead) to fill in a tour that has been booked for another band. We played 10 gigs between Switzerland, Germany, Belgium and the Netherlands and we had so much fun we decided to be a permanent band. We then played more shows, venues and festivals for a few years, but after 2010 we moved to different cities, got jobs, kids and life took us to different paths...until 2020.

During the lockdown we started working at new music again, and started recording our first full length. Flying a Delorean To 2007 tells 11 stories about our 2007 tour, life on the road, the lockdown, friendship and the will to play together again, after 15 years (Including Fleetwood Mac's "Dreams" cover, featuring Sandro from Forty Winks as guest singer). We recorded it 100% at home/in our rehearsal space and the 11 tracks have been mixed and mastered by Chris Fogal (Black in Bluhm Studio) in march 2022.

The new record will be released on October 28th by Engineer Records , Eternalis Records, Pasidaryk Pats Records and High End Denim Records on digital platforms + a limited edition LP (300 copies). The first single, 'Fast Times in Den Haag', was released on all digital platforms on July 1st, together with the video you can watch down here. The second one, our cover of Fleetwood Mac's "Dreams", was launched October 7th as a digi-single + video. We're nowbooking tour dates in Europe to promote the new release starting late October 2022 (see shows section for more).
